

A Chimerical Enterprise

James Simons is the founder of the Simons Foundation base in the United States. An investment modeling firm that develops market analysis of stock market trends. A foundation that has extended into furthering the mathematical sciences (through increase funding for research and development in mathematics) by promoting and establishing the belief that the private sector serves an important function in fostering learning and academia.

Having amassed an influential role in the private publishing industry and the prize system. Encompassing multiple other areas of mathematical research and development, the Simons Foundation employed divergent world-renowned academics -- in the mathematical and physical sciences, into the scientific advisory committee.

Which led to the construction of the Simons Center for Geometry and Physics in 2011, base at Stony Brook University in New York State, giving weekly talks and yearly conferences on the cutting edge of the mathematical sciences -- at the interface of geometry and physics.

Most monthly talks delve on the cutting edge of strings and algebraic geometry. Inviting conventional speakers, from other universities and academic institutions, to give weekly discussions while also holding work-shops amongst professors and students that delve into more specialized topics in mathematics.

A foundation which prides itself as having made significant -- spared no expense, strides to increase Stony Brook University's leadership-role in representing the core sciences. To continually meet their commitments to higher academic standards.

Yet the quality of the permanent faculty members and visiting professors is mainstream (resulting in negligible qualitative difference in the competence and strength of its outside science departments and experimental laboratories -- especially, the C.N. Yang Institute for Theoretical Physics, Brookhaven National Laboratories and Cold Spring Harbor).

The Simons Foundation is a chimerical enterprise. Whose said nature is its tendency to overreach itself in planning and decision-making. Amassing a large-cult following in the Long Island area for its irresponsible entrepreneurial practices when scheduling, promoting and holding conferences and talks. Causing havoc, by reasons that their professors and students are incline to be more reactionary and anti-statist rather than cooperative and contemplative (with elements of racial supremacy that has brought into question their capability to uphold inclusiveness and diversity important for producing cutting-edge advances in mathematics).

Not anticipating the global aftershocks in the form of a deadly norm that was set after 2011, when world-renowned mathematical experts made the decision to dissociate from the Simons Foundation to contain a cloud-atlas mosaic. Eventually emerging into (an almost out of control) world-wide pathological mass-movement that plunge the political establishment, prize system and the scientific process into mayhem and complete disarray.

With the permanent decline of the religious state and the breakdown of Earth's biosphere, the Simons Foundation has since then expanded its efforts from mathematics and investment modeling. Holding political fundraisers, including poetry discussions, meant to further their constituency and investors.
