

so now that we have the formula for what happens in the universe and knowing that time is paced we could ask questions such as when the next time there will be an eclipse and collect as much info about everything that doesnt make it happen as calculated beforehand and then we could deduce the presence of more effects and try to calculate them the same way and then we could deduce theoritically what is happening