

the only way to understand particles so everything happen with a pace now we could ask questions about the nature of everything as its paced out If try to make experiments to measure how much time these things happen we could go very small and most importantly very large its best to have measuring tools for the very great and the very small both in particle size exploration and the time its effects happen