Abstract

We collect and put together the jaid( surnames) of Khasi-Jaintia tribes of Meghalaya, of India, in this paper. There are more jaid than presented in the paper.

I. INTRODUCTION

"Khasiaka jaid to josti"—a common saying. Meghalaya is a state in the North-Eastern part of India. The state is composed of three Hills, Khasi, Jaintia and Garo respectively. Khasi and Jaintia Hills are nearby, languages are closer, customs are also similar. Society is matrilineal. Khasi-Jaintia Hills spread from Nongpoh to Ribhoi to Khliehriat to Dawki to Cherrapunjee to Ranikore to Nongstoin, encircling Shillong, Jowai. Shillong is the capital of Meghalaya. Jowai is the head quarter of the Jaintia Hills. As one becomes curious about the populace, one is given the impression that there are huge number of surnames in the Khasi-Jaintia Hills, like the slopes of the hills. To comprehend, how many are the surnames, referred to as Jaid, existing with the Khasi-Jaintia population, we undertook a naive exercise. Ask people by people what is your jaid? What is the jaid of your father? What is the jaid of your grandfather? What are the jaid of your friends, your neighbours? This collection we cross-check with the Meghalaya Telephone Directory, [1] and augment putting in more entries from the same, [1].

III. ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The author would like to thank many many people who have contributed to this collection, from students in his MSC class to a Zoology R.S. to his friends Bahbase, Momo et al, to the shop owners, to the Ranger Securities in NEHU, to the Physical Science Dean's Office in NEHU for allowing him to use a Meghalaya BSNL Telephone Directory. The author has got benefitted from the attendance lists of the classes over the years at NEHU. Moreover, it will be of interest to bring the work to the logical end, by giving it a form of a dictionary like The Penguin Encyclopedia of Places by W. G. Moore, [2].
